Our No. 1 War

A whole chain of events bears evidence that the Pacific has become the scene of our No. 1 war. The immediate job is to clean up Hitlerism in Europe but there is plenty of proof that this is so well in hand that the main planning may now be turned toward the elimination of the Japanese hold on the Orient.

President Roosevelt's conference with military leaders in Hawaii where the Japanese started the war, simultaneous bombings of enemy positions in widely separated areas, adjustment of airplane production to meet the specifications of Pacific warfare, transfer of a considerable part of the British naval force to the Pacific—all of these show that the Japanese are about to feel the full strength of Allied and especially of American might.

There were many who thought, after Pearl Harbor, that this country should concentrate all its power against the treacherous enemy which had attacked it, leaving the Nazis to the British and the Russians. Events have shown the wisdom which sent this country into the European war where the fresh strength of American troops and armor played so large a part in turning the tide of battle in Africa and in the Mediterranean and now in France while the Russians took care of their assignment so magnificently on the eastern front.

The elimination of the Hitler threat to the world is now assured and defeat of Japan is just as certain and will come more quickly.

Fighting it as a part-time war we have piled up an impressive series of victories. When we make it our No. 1 job the progress will be swift.

When General MacArthur left the Philippines his promise to return was a brave hope. Now it is an assured feat and the time of its accomplishment is not too far away.

Russians and Communists

It must be puzzling to people of other lands to see good Americans applauding the Russians so enthusiastically on the one hand and denouncing the efforts of the Communists to infiltrate into the American government.

In the minds of many people the terms Russian and Communist are synonymous. For the present purpose this may be conceded although it does not hold true in this country where only a minority of the Communist party is made up of Russians.

The simple truth of the matter is Americans respect the rights of the Russians—or Communists if you like—to use their own form of government in their own country. They admire their skill and bravery as fighting men and hail them as the allies who broke the myth of German invincibility. They recognize their right under American constitution and law to maintain a party organization in this country. They resent and denounce Communist efforts to weasel their way into political power by burrowing into one of the major parties in the hope of dominating from within when they cannot succeed from without.

The American Communist party is insignificant in numbers and its voting strength has been on the decrease. It cast 102,999 votes in 1932, 80,159 in 1936 and only 46,251 in 1940. Its membership, however, is militant, highly organized and violently energetic. Lacking any possible hope of electing its own candidate to important office, it has worked shrewdly in putting its ideology into high places by working through larger groups which failed to look a gift horse in the mouth or to examine the political tenets of a supporter.

Not all Russians are Communists and not all Communists wear the sickle and hammer as their political insignia.

The Jobs Soldiers Want

When 10,000,000 men put off the uniform and put on their overalls, the task of replacing them in their peacetime jobs will be almost as great as that of finding replacements for them when they left.

Procedure in most companies as well as the law requires that the soldiers get a chance first at the jobs they left but it becomes apparent from many sources that a lot of the men do not want their old jobs back.

Many who worked at the less desirable trades and some who had no trades at all will come out of the war as highly specialized workers. Thousands who went in as laborers, students and clerks will come out skilled in radar, telephony, mechanics and all of the other pursuits required by a mechanized war. Still others have done some serious thinking and will take advantage of the government plan to educate them in vocational schools.

Letters which service men write back to their companies indicate that the most of them will want to follow the easier course of going back to the old jobs. There are so many, however, who desire a chance that the schools must prepare for a great enrollment of veteran-students and employment officers should be preparing for a great turnover among their employees who have been in the armed forces.

The soldier has a legal right to his old job. He has a moral right to a better one and many of them want it.

An Education Comes First

Surveys by public school authorities reveal that many high school pupils have more sense than many of their elders. While too many grownups have lost their heads over wartime wages, the youngsters have kept their minds clear for straight thinking and their feet on the ground. That is the reason most of the pupils report they are going back to school in the fall, many of them giving up jobs at which they drew unprecedented wages during the summer vacation.

Most wartime jobs are temporary but an education is something permanent. It pays dividends during a lifetime.

In this era of complicated living, the person with the best education is in the best position to attain success. There are still isolated cases in which the man who left the little red schoolhouse for a job attains success but for every such one there are dozens who succeeded through preparation and the specialization which is today's recipe for progress.

Any youth with two strong arms and a willing back can get a job today but in the future the one with the training will get the preference and the preparation represented by high school and college will speak for him long after the wartime paycheck has been spent.

Schools are making it easier each year for boys and girls to fit themselves for life, each according to his talents. They are turning out graduates who are ready to step into specialized jobs. Those who fail to take advantage of this opportunity face a future of regret which no amount of temporary prosperity can alleviate.

Youth's greatest opportunity will be voiced in the call of the schoolbells next month. Those who respond will be the leaders of the future.

The Stars Say

For Wednesday, August 16

UNDER HIGHLY stimulated forces, emotions and energies this should prove to be a day of satisfaction and attainment, with many pleasant and progressive accomplishments and adventures in both business and private affairs. Initiative and ingenuity should be directed along ambitious lines, and this in connection with important organizations, secret as well as open, should bring rewards and a definite degree of happiness, possibly in relation to elderly persons or relatives. But be careful to handle these with sympathy and amiability.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a pleasant and prosperous year, with much stirring happily in both private and business life. There may be exceptional or intriguing experiences with out of the ordinary persons, who may be endowed with artistic, intellectual or other cultural talents, although practical and dependable despite psychic, intuitive or emotional tendencies. Such contact might be with elders or mature relatives, responding to kindly, sympathetic and understanding gestures. Those in high places may also be cooperative.

A child born on this day should have many creative abilities, perhaps in cultural lines, although constructive and enterprising. It should enjoy a pleasant and productive life.

Four Ways To Avoid Hay Fever Attacks

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

YESTERDAY we pointed out in connection with the epidemic of hay fever that hits this country just at the present time of year that we know from scientific studies of the last quarter century that it is due to the irritating properties of the pollen of the ragweed or some plant of the ragweed family.

Dr. Clendinging will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

The severity of hay fever is worst in the region of the Mississippi Valley, is present, but not severe, on the Atlantic coast, and thins out almost to nothingness in Canada, Maine, and the Pacific Coast. The season begins about August 15th, is at its peak from August 25th to September 10th, and is gone by September 30th.

As to treatment, I never knew of anyone who was permanently cured of it. Sometimes in old age, the individual who has suffered all his life perhaps develops an immunity and the attacks are milder, but this is hardly worth counting on.

So avoidance of an attack comes down, in my experience, to one of four things:

Vacation Best

First, vacation during the worst of the season, to a hayfeverless climate—Canada, northern Lake Superior or Michigan, Duluth, California, Maine, the mountains. This is the surest, pleasantest and in the long run the cheapest treatment.

Second, furnishing sleeping room and working with an air filter in the window and an air conditioning unit in the room. This is effective, not too expensive, but, of course, has the disadvantages of limitation of activities. No golf, no tennis, no exercise, no movies. Most of the victims of hay fever, however, feel if they can get through the night comfortably and avoid asthma they can stand the discomforts of the daytime. Efficient window ventilators are made by the Davids Air Filter Corporation, New York, and Ad-Lee Company, Chicago.

Besides filtering all air from the outside, the bedroom must be stripped of carpets, rugs and draperies. Because during the hay fever season the individual becomes sensitive to many things which do not bother him during the rest of the year, the bedding, mattress and pillow cases should be made of non-allergic materials, such as are made by Allergia Products Company, Newton, Massachusetts, and Allergo-Proof Encasings, Cleveland, Ohio.

Third—Treatment by pollen antigens by hypodermic immunization. This produces complete relief in about 25 per cent of cases, partial relief in about 50 per cent. The antigens can be given before the season begins, just before and during the season or throughout the year. The most important recent discovery about them is that the immu-

Mary Norman, attractive widow and successful decorator, is delighted when Judith Lambert, daughter of an old friend, whose home is in California, is en route to Maine for the summer. The families had been neighbors before Judith's father died. She asks for Mary's son, Dr. Matthew Norman, adding, "He was my first crush—but he didn't know I existed."

Mary told her that Matthew plans to have his own office soon. Judith promised to stop off again on her way home in the fall. As Mary dressed for dinner with Lynn Mortimer, long her devoted friend, she indulged in a little mental match-making between Judith and her son. For twenty years Lynn's wife had been a mental patient and for almost as long as that he has been in love with Mary. Although they never discussed it, Mary is aware of her love but feels there is no room in her busy life for anyone except Matthew. Mary assumes Matthew is detained at the hospital when he does not come home for dinner.

CHAPTER FOUR

They went into the living room and Lynn asked, "Play to me, Mary, won't you?"

She played, her hands gentle and loving on the keys, very strong. He said, not for the first time, during a moment of something which was like a silver silence just pierced faintly with sound, "What a pity that you didn't go on with it."

"But I fell in love, I married."

"He said, 'You could have still gone on.'"

"I suppose so," she told him; "there was money enough, at first. But there was also Matthew. I couldn't bear to turn him over to nurses."

The bell rang sharply and Kate soon returned; she had a telegram in her hand.

Mary took it and sat there on the piano bench, her fingers touching the unopened message with the utmost reluctance.

Lynn asked, "Is anything wrong?"

"No," she told him; "it's probably a client who's changed her mind. They always do. It's just that I hate telegrams. I dread them."

She opened the wire and sat quite motionless. Lynn watched the color fade until the rouge on her lips stood out red and vivid. He said, "Mary, my dear, has anything happened to Matthew?"

After a moment she spoke. "No... or rather, yes. What we were talking about. He—Matthew is married."

"Married," repeated Lynn incredulously. "Good Lord! Where—when—to whom?"

Mary rose from the piano bench, and walked toward the couch and sat down on it as though, suddenly, her knees were weak.

Lynn, following her, grumbling, "Ungrateful young cub, I could wring his neck. I—"

"Oh, hush," she said, "you don't know the least thing about it. I'm not upset, I'm not angry. I'm just startled... and trying to adjust myself. I know the girl. He's brought her here several times. Her name is Irene Murray and she is a charge nurse at the hospital. She's a charming, gentle, attractive girl and I like her very much. I've known—or guessed—for some time that she was in love with him. I didn't know—that he...."

He asked, "Then why the secrecy?"

She said, "The wire simply says that Irene is on vacation, and that he managed a day off and they drove to Maryland."

"Why couldn't they have done it properly?" Lynn wanted to know. "After he was through with the hospital? Hasn't the girl any parents?"

"Just an aunt, I think," said Mary, trying to remember, "out in South Dakota."

"It's crazy," declared Lynn bluntly. "I suppose you'll go on supporting two, as you have one."

She said, after a moment, "There'll be enough. Naturally I made Matthew an allowance while he was interning and I had expected to continue—augmenting it, of course—when he set up his own practice. This won't make any difference."

Lynn rasped, "The boy hasn't an unselfish bone in his body. Mary... or a considerate thought?"

Mary said, "Please, Lynn, don't make me angry with you. You know that isn't so. He's never given me a moment of anxiety. He's been all any woman could ask her son to be. And he has a right to select his wife and the time and place of his marriage."

After a moment, Lynn announced, "I'm going.... I'd like to stay here and offer you a shoulder to weep upon. Only you aren't the weeping sort.... and I know you well enough to feel that you'd rather be alone. Isn't that so?"

"I suppose it is," she said, and gave him her cool, firm hand. "Thanks, and don't think too hard of Matthew."

"I'll try, but I suppose it will be a job. But he's your son. He even looks like you, he has your charm...."

"And you are very fond of him," said Mary, smiling.

"I am.... worse luck. How about a wedding present? I suppose a check would be.... Look here, promise me that the first chance, you get you'll let me meet the new Mrs. Norman."

"I promise."

Mary heard the door close after him, and then went back to the piano and picked up the telegram. She stood there, her lower lip caught in her even small teeth, her shoulders square and her head high. She thought, "It wasn't kind of you, Matthew, you might have let me be there."

Then Mary went to the kitchen to tell Kate and Nellie and, finally, escaping from their exclamations and questions, to the telephone to send a wire to Matthew. He would have it when he returned to the hospital. She would word it discreetly but he would understand. She would say: "Terribly happy for you, all my love to you both."

Presently she went into her bedroom and made ready for bed. She wouldn't sleep, of course. She was a poor sleeper at best, dating from all the nights she had been up with Matthew as a baby, and later, when he was a schoolboy when she had lain awake, listening for his breathing, getting up often to put a blanket over him, or to remove one, then when he had gone away to school she hadn't slept, because she was lonely. So she had fallen into the habit of reading in bed, even after coming home from a party, a play.

Mary got into bed, arranged her pillows, and picked up one of the many bright-jacketed books which were at her hand. Kate knocked and came in with the little thermos of hot milk and the plate of crackers. "I know it's early," she said, "but I thought I'd bring it along."

"I'll drink it later. Thank you, Kate."

Kate said, lingering, "We're that excited about the doctor. Nellie's been crying her eyes out. She just can't imagine him being married."

"It's hard for me to imagine too," remarked Mary, "but we'll soon learn." She added, "And I'm very pleased."

"I told Nellie," Kate said, "that night the young lady—Mrs. Norman, that is—was here. I told her Mark my word, she thinks she world of him." She stopped, a little embarrassed. Her servants adored Mary Norman, but she had never encouraged familiarity or intimate discussion. "It's just that we're so excited," Kate murmured, abashed.

"Of course you are, and so am I," smiled Mary. "I'll tell Dr. Norman.... on second thought, you can tell him yourself, very soon."

Kate said good night and went from the room. Mary pushed the book aside. She couldn't read. How could she? You couldn't read when you had just learned of your son's marriage any more than you could read there in the waiting room the time he was operated on for appendicitis, or going up to camp the time they called you and told you he was ill.

She thought, if only he's happy. Mary set her jaw, unconsciously. She had never permitted the soft flesh to become slackened and relaxed. You put your best foot and your best face forward in her business.... But few people realized how firm her chin was. Years ago, when she was just eighteen—a very short time before she met Tom Norman—her music teacher had looked at her and laughed. He had said, "You have very skillful hands, Mary. But you play with your chin, my dear.... someday you'll find that out." She had been helpless with laughter, envisaging herself playing with her chin.

To the Boy with the Purple Heart...

THERE'S nothing glorious about it to him. His is the mud, the muck and the pain of war, far from the hills of home.

He's "the man on the ground"—the infantryman—and nothing finer could be said of him than this: that he should offer his life for his country... and live.

Many thousands among our ground forces have been wounded in this war, yet the fatalities from wounds have been reduced to only 3 out of every 100 cases.

For the boy with the purple heart is not alone out there. With him is the blood you gave, the planes you built, the son you sent.

And with him is all the power of American aviation—from the transports that brought in the medical supplies he needs, to the protective umbrella of bombers overhead, and the hospital ships that fly him out.

The boy with the purple heart has given a future to the world... and he will live to share it with you!

NOTHING that we might say here could ever pay adequate tribute to the boy with the purple heart. Of far more meaning are the materials upon which the lives of American men so constantly depend.

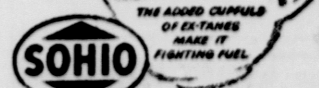

It is a matter of personal pride to the men and women at Sohio that their work has played a part in helping to provide those materials.

For the highly critical EX-TANES which Sohio is producing for our Air Forces are contributing an extra plus of power to literally every type of American plane.

EX-TANES are extremely powerful petroleum molecules—so powerful that a few cupfuls added to a gallon of aviation gasoline transform it into the world's highest grade fighting fuel. So powerful that fuel energized with EX-TANES helps our pursuit planes to fly faster, higher and nearly 50% farther.

Today, the men and women of Sohio are making extra power for victory... tomorrow they will make better gasolines for you...

Shirley Pfeiffer Is Bride Of Pvt. Wright At Church

White gladioli and white asters, in a setting of palms and cybodium fern, formed the background for the wedding of Miss Shirley Pfeiffer of Youngstown, formerly of Salem, and Pvt. Jack W. Wright, stationed at Denver, Colo., son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wright of E. Third st., at 7 p. m. yesterday in St. Paul's Catholic church.

Tall white tapers in 12-branch candelabra lighted the altar where vows were exchanged in the single ring ceremony performed by Rev. Fr. Herbert Cook of St. Brendan's parish, Youngstown, former rector here.

A short program of organ and vocal numbers preceded the ceremony, with Miss Sara Colman as organist and Edward Gilman of Youngstown as soloist. Given in marriage by her father, Ray P. Pfeiffer of Youngstown, the bride wore a colonial design gown of white tulle, fashioned with fitted basque and full skirt. The lapels at the v-neckline were trimmed with narrow lace which extended to the waistline and the long sleeves ending in points over the hands were edged with the lace. Her veil of silk illusion was arranged in a small cap of lace, trimmed with a ruching and rosettes of lace and seed pearls. Her bouquet of white roses was centered with an orchid.

Mrs. George Pfeiffer of Youngstown, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor, wearing a dusty rose tulle frock, designed with front-buttoned bodice and full skirt. She wore a Juliet cap of matching net and carried yellow roses.

Miss Alys McDonald of Salem, as maid-of-honor, was in green tulle gown with matching net cap and her bouquet was of Tailsman roses.

Mrs. Pfeiffer, mother of the bride, wore a black silk crepe gown with blue beaded yoke and corsage of yellow roses and Mrs. Wright, the groom's mother, was in navy blue sheer with corsage of Tailsman roses.

Following the ceremony, which was attended by many friends and relatives of the couple, a reception was given at the Tippecanoe Country club, Youngstown, for 150 guests from Salem, Youngstown and Columbus.

After a few days wedding trip, the bride will return to Youngstown to make her home with her parents and Pvt. Wright will return to Lawson General hospital in Denver, Colo., where he is stationed with the medical corps.

Mrs. Wright is employed in the commercial office of the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. in Youngstown. Before entering the service more than a year ago, Pvt. Wright was employed by the Electric Furnace Co. The bride and her parents are former Salem residents.

Bringing Up Baby In The Right Way

Prepared by the Staff of the Child Study Association of America, Inc.

AP Features

BABIES sleeping in a hospital nursery look as like as peas in a pod, but when they wake up, what a difference! In one crib, the baby lies awake quietly waiting to be picked up. From the next bed come piercing wails, as the baby thrashes his arms about. Another fusses and whimpers. They all want to be fed, but they show it in different ways.

Your child may start to walk at ten months, while the little one next door may be eighteen months old before he gets going. Yet at two they are both walking equally well. Whether it is teething or taking or drinking out of a cup, babies have their own time for starting, but they all get there in the end.

So don't worry if your child is not doing things as early as your sister's child, or doesn't quite come up to Susie down the street.

Just be sure to take him to the doctor or health center at regular times so that you know he is developing normally. Then you can relax and enjoy watching him progress in his own special way.

FOUR YEARS AGO, Hans WAS IN OUR SHOES

HANS is a German. Four years ago, he felt the way many of us feel today. He thought the war was as good as won.

He had reason to think so. Far more reason than we have. France was his. England was bloody after Dunkerque. The German Army seemed invincible.

But the war wasn't almost over. And now it is our armies that are on the march. It is our bombers blasting German cities. Victory is in our grasp. It's up to us to see that we don't let it slip through our fingers the way Hans did.

Most of us know that this is the military crisis of this war—the time when our fighting men must give everything they have, not once in a while but hour after hour—day after day.

But this alone is not enough. The lives of brave men are not enough. Money is needed too.

For this is the financial crisis of the war just as surely as it is the military crisis. Millions of dollars' worth of equipment is being destroyed. The money to replace it must come from us, quickly.

If every last one of us here at home will try to match the constant, day-to-day drive of the men who fight our battles, we'll raise that money.

The way to do it is to put every cent we can possibly invest into U.S. War Bonds. Not some of us. All of us. Not once in a while during a drive, but regularly.

Can we do the job that Hans couldn't do? It's up to you.

And here are 5 more reasons for buying Extra War Bonds!

1. War Bonds are the best, the safest investment in the world!
2. War Bonds return you $4 for every $3 in 10 years.
3. War Bonds help keep prices down.
4. War Bonds will help win the Peace by increasing purchasing power after the War.
5. War Bonds mean education for your children, security for you, funds for retirement.

cal periods—for the Germans. But Eisenhower warned against expecting that the end would come in a matter of weeks.

"This week is marking a very definite climax in one phase of the operational plan that has been in effect since D-day," the general said. "Just what will be the result in the sum total no one can say. It is certain that German forces, congregated on our front are taking a sound beating. In the campaigns lying ahead numbers of such tactical victories must be won because, even if we realize our fondest hopes in a situation such as this, we are still a long way from the Rhine."

"All of us are keyed up to keep on intensifying our efforts to the moment of final victory—no matter how long it may take."

"COMMANDO" KELLY CONFINED TO POST

FORT BENNING, Ga., Aug. 15.—Court-martialed for returning six days late from a furlough, Tech. Sgt. Charles E. (Commando) Kelly today was "seated out" a $90 fine and three months' restrictions to his company area, but he was happy about one thing—

He can still go to the movies—on the military reservation.

The "one-man army's" only request after the court-martial sentence was, smilingly, "may I attend the movies?" He was advised he could.

Kelly, the Pittsburgh youth whose heroic exploits in Italy in 1943 won him the Congressional Medal of Honor, blamed "well-wishers" for his tardiness in returning to the infantry school here where he is stationed.

WPB Okays Civilian Goods Production

CLEVELAND, Aug. 15.—Immediate effect of the war production board's lifting of the ban against production of hundreds of civilian items is expected to be "very slight" in Ohio, a regional WPB spokesman reports.

In a statement issued yesterday after WPB Chairman Donald M. Nelson's announcement of the ban removal, Regional Deputy Director Frank M. Aldridge said "there will not be much room" for increased civilian production in Ohio until cutbacks and cancellations exceed new contracts and accelerated old contracts.

"Mr. Nelson has advised us that present war conditions make it imperative that we give first consideration to war production," Aldridge observed, "and Ohio is one of the 'tight' areas where manpower shortages have created a serious situation in many critical war programs."

The list of preferred articles includes vacuum cleaners, electric ranges, gas but not electric refrigerators, wringers and mangles but not washing machines, lawn mowers, electric heaters and heating pads, oil burners, bicycles, virtually all types of enameled and cast iron ware, metal office furniture, sewing machines, church goods, electric fans, water heaters and storage batteries.

Simpler items were named as well, including ash cans, coal hods, funnels, pails and buckets, dinner pails, wash tubs, enameled percolators, egg beaters, clothes hangers, pot scrapers, carpet sweepers, wash boards, electric irons, hair pins and bobbie pins.

County Will Receive Tax Payments On Last Period

LISBON, Aug. 15.—Vincent C. Judge, chief deputy in the Columbiana county treasurer's office announced today that tax returns were being received in good shape and that anyone wishing to pay their last half 1943 taxes could do so without waiting until final statements are mailed.

No date has been set for mailing of these statements as the treasurer's office is required by law to make a settlement with each of the taxing districts before the last half are mailed. However, Judge said that as settlement is made with each district last half statements would go out to each district in turn, probably the latter part of September.

Sgt. Moga Describes Invasion From Air

Promotion of Corp. Valentine Moga, Jr., of Salem, to the rank of sergeant recently was announced by the headquarters of a Ninth Air Force Troop Carrier base, located in the European theater of operations.

Sgt. Moga is a radio operator on a C-47 plane, the unarmed, unarmored war horse of the air. On D-day he participated in his first major invasion. Of his experience he says:

"If I never participate in another major operation I'll still have enough to tell my grandchildren. It was the most beautiful sight one would ever want to see. Planes could be seen all over the sky and below us were more boats than are imaginable headed for the continent. We carried troops and supplies into France that night and got by without incident. Impressive, is about the best word I can think of to describe D-day."

Moga entered the military service in March, 1943, and was sent to the radio school at Sioux Falls, S. D. He was ordered overseas in the early part of this year. In civilian life Moga was a draftsman for the Curtis Pump Co. of Dayton.

The unit to which he is now assigned has to date participated in three major invasions. It was while they were in North Africa that they took part in the Sicilian invasion and on moving to Sicily again was active in the Italian invasion.

SENATE EASES ITS POLITICAL STRINGS

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The senate, insisting that American troops be allowed full access to political news, speedily passed today amendments modifying the anti-propaganda provisions of the soldier voting law under which the Army and Navy have banned numerous books and magazines and some newspapers.

Senate approval of the modifying amendments came shortly after they had been recommended unanimously by the elections committee.

Sen. Green (D-R.I.), elections committee chairman, said the revisions would permit the sale at Army and Navy stores of any newspaper, magazine or book in general circulation in the United States—subject only to the limits of available transportation.

Some had been banned under the existing law on the ground that they contained material calculated to affect the outcome of the November election. The armed services had interpreted the act to prevent their sales at Army or Navy stores, although they could be purchased outside military establishments and delivered to troops through the mails.

The amendments sponsored by Senators Green and Lucas (D-Ill.), were approved by a voice vote and now go to the house.

News Scores Another Upset, Beats First Place Demings, 2-1

China Downs Old Timers To Take Over First Place; Now Up To News To Beat Potters

Knocking Demings into second place, the Salem News took over first position in Class A softball standings by handing the Potters a 2-1 defeat, their first of the fourth round—as the China knocked off the Recreation 2-0 to step into momentary hold on first, once again.

Although Pitcher Kenny Brudery only allowed three News hits, Chet Brautigam kept the Demings crew without enough safeties in any one inning to win the game. Brautigam allowed just four hits. Scoring all the runs in the fifth inning, the nearly air-tight upset marks the second time this year that the News has pulled the unexpected and trounced a heavy favorite.

Headland Has Shoulder Injured In Game Action

Kenny Headland, Deming left-fielder, suffered a torn ligament in his right shoulder when he collided with Paul Dodez, News catcher, at the plate in the News-Demings game yesterday. Headland was taken to the City hospital where an x-ray revealed a torn shoulder ligament. The injury will keep Headland out of league play for the rest of the season, as he must wear a sling for several weeks, it was reported today.

It was the News that upset the China 8-0, for the first defeat the Potters had suffered in 19 straight games.

Throwing the league race back into great confusion the News is now faced with a contest on Thursday night. By beating the Potters, the News can put Demings back into first—providing the Potters can come through in the rest of their ball games.

A single by Orrie Wright, marked the opening of the News' two run spurge in the fifth. Wright led off with his single and advanced to third on wild pitches with no body down. Dick Falk lined a low one down to short and a fumble scored Wright with the first tally and put Falk in a position to score. Outfielder Robinette then laced a double deep in left field to score Falk with the winning margin.

The lone Deming tally came when Headland scored from third on a long fly in the last half of the fifth. Chet Brautigam stopped the only other Demings threat in the sixth when a man reached third with no one down. Three pop flies ended the inning.

The Rees lost to the China in the first frame. The Potters scored two big runs in the initial frame and from then on neither team tallied, although the Old Timers did look dangerous on several occasions.

Dale Ritchie, back on the mound for the China, showed a new style for the speed-ball expert. Ritchie mixed in a good many slow balls to keep the Rees well baffled throughout. The new style of Ritchie pitched-ing proved successful as the Old Timers could only bingle five times while the China picked up seven hits from Hurler Ralph Gregg.

Mike Schuller, playing center field for the Rees, was the only Old Timer to fathom the Ritchie slow ball consistently, and he connected two times in three trips to the plate.

ATHLETICS MEET COLUMBIANA HERE TO SETTLE SCORE

Game Tomorrow Booked to Play Off Tie Game Here One Month Ago

With hopes of continuing the brand of ball displayed against the Youngstown Welders Sunday, the Salem Athletics will be out tomorrow at 6 p. m. to settle a tie game played here a month ago with the Columbian Merchants.

After defeating Columbiana twice on their home field, the Salem aggregation was deadlocked, 11-11, in a return game here a month ago. The contest tomorrow has been booked to break that extra inning tie, which was stopped because of darkness.

Working on the mound for Salem will be a new recruit, Frank Lydek, 19-year-old youth who has worked out in six games for the Columbus Red Birds this season. Participating in tryouts for the American association, Lydek earned his way into a Red Bird uniform for a six game tryout. He is now working in Salem and hopes to play regularly with the Salem team.

Sponsor Scott Chisholm said today that Frank Lydek, Scribner recruit who pitched several innings a week ago, also may get into action tomorrow. The Columbian outfit will have the same personnel that appeared here a month ago. Most of the players are from outstanding scholastic talent, with a sprinkling of stars from a few years back.

Some Track Sports Just Not For Nazis

CHICAGO — The colonel in command of a contingent of German war prisoners quartered in this area was eager to provide sports for the prisoners, but wanted to avoid baseball, which is not too popular in Germany.

In the midst of suggesting a series of track events, he got as far as "pole vaulting," when he was interrupted by a young lieutenant.

"Surely, sir," the lieutenant said, "you do not mean pole vaulting."

The colonel suddenly remembered that the fences enclosing the prisoner compound would be "easy sailing" for a pole vaulter and hurriedly crossed the suggestion from the list.

SHORTS AND SHELLS

Fred Lieb, who has written baseball since 1911, is out with a book on the St. Louis Cardinals. Local tennis experts are picking Husky Louise Brough to whip Pauline Betz again in the Nationals.

They figure she was acquired pose to go with her power while Pauline isn't as fast as she was. Look for the next big football fuss to take place when the southeastern conference meets Sept. 2 and 3. ## The War Today has been narrowed to less than a dozen miles. That must look as small as the eye of a lambic needle to the thousands of men who are struggling to escape. And even if they run the gauntlet of that narrow passage of death they will come under a deluge of bombs from the Allied air fleets which are attacking every roadway or assemblage of troops.

By DeWitt MacKenzie

Along with all this sensational development on the fighting fronts at last has come Gen. DeGaulle's call to the people of France to rise against their oppressors. To me that's one of the great moments of the war. It symbolizes dramatically the rebirth of a great nation which Hitler thought he had crushed.

This uprising of the tortured civilians of France against the Germans can be a very terrible thing. It will be death striking from least expected directions. Just as the civilians of Warsaw are battling the invaders. Just as the Slaves who Hitler imported into Germany to do his work now are beginning to strike under cloak of night.

ALLIANCE SOLDIER

Two days later, Tommy went to his commanding officer, tears in his eyes, and said he was tired of staying behind, he wanted to get ashore. He was sent to Saipan as an orderly for his colonel.

Two days later the colonel was digging his own foxhole. His orderly had disappeared. The colonel spoke direly of punishing him when he returned.

Soon, the colonel heard reports of the work Tommy was doing at the front. He had joined an assault company as a stretcher bearer. He had risked his life repeatedly to pull his companions back to safety. He had killed several Japs.

Dies By Officer's Side
The colonel received a report from the company commander, urging that Tommy Richards be left at the front. In reply, he wrote: "My memory isn't what it used to be. I probably will forget to do anything about him."

Tommy Richards remained at the front. Yesterday, an officer fell, and Tommy started after him. Tommy never reached his goal. Today, Tommy and the officer are dead.

Tommy liked music, as he liked all beautiful things. Those who heard him said he could play like a master musician. Tommy said only that he could "bang out a few notes now and then."

Tommy never said anything about the stories, told of his feats by other men. He said only that he "hadn't done much" and was "just a yardbird."

His father, Thomas H. Richards, lives at Ithaca, N. Y.

ALLIANCE, Aug. 15—Pfc. Tommy Richards, mentioned in the news dispatch from Saipan, was a former ward of the Fairmount Children's home and is the son of Mr. Thomas H. Richards of Ithaca, N. Y., and Mrs. Katherine Richards of Cleveland.

He attended Alliance schools and entered the service from the Fairmount home early in 1942. He had been overseas since Christmas, 1943.

NEW A GAS BOOKS WILL BE MAILED BEFORE SEPT. 21ST

The three-quarters of a million motorists in northeastern Ohio will receive their new "A" books through the mail several days prior to Sept. 21, and the books will provide the same monthly ration as at present, it was announced today by Clinton M. Fiske, district director of the Office of Price Administration.

Stressing the fact that motorists will not be required to register in person, Fiske outlined the following steps which all motorists must take to obtain their new "A" books: Beginning Aug. 25 you may obtain an application blank, OPA form R-435, at your local War Price and Rationing board, at gasoline filling stations, or from your plant transportation committee.

Fill out this one-page form, answering all questions.

Before Sept. 9, mail it to your own local War Price and Rationing board accompanied by the back cover of the current "A" book, properly signed.

Be sure to mark the outside of the envelope in which you mail your application with a large letter "A."

This is all the motorist has to do to obtain his book. The old tire inspection record will no longer be required and should not be submitted with the application.

Coincident with disclosure of plans of distribution of books was the announcement from OPA nationally that the new book will provide the same monthly ration as the old—eight gallons or approximately 120 miles per month. However, coupons in the new "A" book will be worth four gallons instead of three the value of the present coupons. Six of these four-gallon coupons will become valid every three months to provide 24 gallons of gasoline in each three-month validity period. The same result is achieved at present by validating eight three-gallon coupons every three months.

REACH MINE. FAIL TO LOCATE 66 BODIES

BELLAIRE, Aug. 15—Rescue crews penetrated 1,000 feet into fire-ravaged Powhatan mine today—but found no trace of any of 66 men who perished July 5.

A shaft was driven into the mine yesterday after three weeks' digging, and the crews, working cautiously, moved on into the mine to recover the bodies of their comrades.

George Strain, state director of industrial relations, said the 66 apparently fled down one of the numerous side entries off the main C-north tunnel where the fire started, and that these entries must be searched one by one.

RED TROOPS GAIN IN EAST PRUSSIA

MOSCOW, Aug. 15—Russian forces started attacking freshly dug German entrenchments today in front of Grajewo, two miles south of the East Prussian border, after cracking the steel and concrete forts around Oswiec and winning a bridgehead across the Biebraza river.

Gen. G. P. Zakharov threw the full offensive might of his second White Russian army group against the Germans' attempts to reorganize their frontier line just blow the Masuria lakes.

A thundering bombardment from the air supported the Red army attack. "The waters of the Biebraza ran dark with enemy blood today," a front dispatch to Izvestia said. Zakharov smothered a series of tank counterattacks with his high-powered drive and struck directly in the rear of large enemy forces tied up in the Suwalki triangle which East Prussia annexed in 1939, by Gen. Ivan Cherniakov's divisions.

Not only Grajewo but Lyck in East Prussia, 12 miles to the north, was menaced by the two Russian army groups. Should these communication centers fall, a German withdrawal from the northeastern corner of East Prussia would be imperative.

3.—Is It Fireproof and Permanent?

4.—Can the Complete Home Be Satisfactorily Insulated?

Hundreds of home owners in the Salem area alone can testify to the complete and satisfactory insulation of their SIDE WALLS, as well as ceiling areas. The George Washington Shrine at Mount Vernon was insulated with mineral wool on the recommendation of the U. S. Government National Bureau of Standards.

5.—What Type of Insulation is Preferable?

The United States Government Department of the Interior states, "Generally, mineral materials are preferable because of their resistance to fire, electrical short circuits, moisture, termites, vermin and decay."—U. S. Bureau of Mines, Circular 7166.)

6.—How Reliable Is the Company Behind the Product?

Johns-Manville pioneered the blown rock wool industry, and for 25 years has been the insulation industry's leader. The Home Insulation Co. of Youngstown, has an exclusive contract with Johns-Manville for installation of their Type A "Blown" Rock Wool in this area.
